The Currency Question.

"Gold for the bankers, and rags for the poeple," is the motto among financiers. The ancial writers also seem to agree with re markable unanimity in measures which, i carried out, must exhaust future generation to pay interest alone to bankers in gold and silver, on the national debt without the leas hope of ever paying the debt itself.

It is perfectly astonishing to witness th perfect recklessness and indifference public men appear to have in plunging the nation into a condition like England, where the people must be crushed to the earth with taxes to the remotest generation, when the thing can as well be avoided. In this remark we beg not to be understoo as being opposed to carrying on the war until the rebellion is crushed, but we wish to place ourselves on the record as not by any means admiring the easy virtue of the majority in Congress, manifested in allowing themselves to be drawn into the snares and wiles and traps of speculators and bankers; enslaving their country eternally to the money-lenders and caring only for the freedom of the negro. There has not been, so far as we have seen, a single speech made in Congress this session on the finances which has shown evidence that the speaker has thoroughly investigated the subject, and which has not shown con clusively that he has been drawn into untenable positions by the theories of bankers made by them and for them, without any reference whatever to any body's good but

The subject of the finances is far too important and vital to be male a party question, and we trust it never will be. In all great military contests, in all countries, the best nen have shown them to be paramount. As life is to the body, so are the "sinews of war" to war itself. Washington could have done little comparatively without Hamilton, or Napoleon without Neckar.

We find in the Washington Chronicle, of Monday, the best article we have lately seen on the subject, from which we make a few extracts. The article is written with marked ability, is philosophical, logical, comprehensive; evincing in the writer powers of no ordinary strength. The article is signed "HAM-ILTON," and dated at Columbia, Mo., Dec.

The following is well put in regard to the Government's paying interest, and the power of the Government over the currency:

Now, on what principle of public economy should the nation convert its Treasury notes, circulating as money, into stocks bearing interest, thus paying, in effect, to the banks $24,000,000 for their unnecessary instrumentality in furnishing the national circulation in the shape of bank notes—a currency, in every im portant particular, inferior to that of Treasury

This idea may be generalized thus: Grantg that, in the progress of civilization, ss from a currency of intrinsic values to representative values, it is quite obvi erament, to society, to the tax-payers, and not to banks and bankers—to supernumerary middle-men between the Government and the great public. Banks should confine their opediscounting and purchase of commercial paper, dealing in exchanges, & 2. The power of issue should be either wholly restrained, or so controlled by a stringent bankrupt law as to guard the currency against inflation and de basement—so stringent, indeed, that the banks would have no inducement to issue at all, so long as the Treasury notes afloat were of suf-ficient amount to fill the channels of circula-

By substituting taxing law for bankrupt law we believe the desired result would be attain. ed with more case and certainty. The following in regard to the doings of "our able Secretary of the Treasury" would indicate that the writer's opinion of the great ability of the said functionary might be after all of a questionable character. The reference to English history is apposite and appropriate Our present very able Secretary of the Treasury undertook, in the beginning, to pro-vide for the financial administration of this war, by the usual expedient of borrowing money of the bankers, on credit of fresh Gov-ernment bonds bearing interest. The ne-gotiation was, to a limited extent, successful, and was conducted with the apparent expec-tation that the batks would be able to furnish specie funds at the call of the Government, and that the public disbursements could con-tinue to be made on the specie basis. But it is obvious to remark that the speedy suspension of specie payments by the banks is inevitable, under the condition of large advances to the Government in addition to business ac-othe Government in addition to business acommodations to customers.

As a leading illustration of this truth, the tank of England went into suspension in 1797, and did not come out again till 1822—after the lapse of a quarter of a century—a period not of weakness and decay, but, in fact, the gigantic period in the history of England—gigantic in the vigor and volume of her production, and still wore in the threes of perion. duction, and still more in the threes of national achievement. The bank, by its advances to the Government, for public uses, exhausted its means to pay its own notes in specie. The paper of the bank, however, although irre-deemable, continued during this whole period to perform the functions of money, on this deemable, continued during this whole period to perform the functions of money, on this double confidence:—first, that the Government could and would ultimately pay the bank; and, secondly, that then the bank could and would pay the holders of its notes. This confidence was ultimately realized in 1822. Without this confidence in the Government, the paper of the bank would have been rags, and nothing more.

the paper of the bank would have been rags, and nothing more.

If, then, the currency of Eagland depended, as it old for a quarter of a century, on the Governmeut faith, in what was that faith the better of the holder, after being passed through the bank strainer, than if the timely dew had fallen, direct and pure, from the national sovereignty itself? Had the Bank of Eagland works here wholly retired and the chapmels. ereignty itself? Had the Bank of England notes been wholly retired, and the channels of circulation been filled by the same amount of exchanger belles, exchangeable at the "Transfer Office" for Government stocks paying interest, (and vice versa), always at par, the confidence would have been more complete, because more intelligent; the medium of exchange would have been more convenient and more efficient, the business of England would have been better done; and the saving of the more efficient, the business of England would have been better done; and the saving of the interest on the whole circulation would have accrued to the Government—to the people—to the tax payers, to whom it rightfully belongs. Well may the American citizen confess to a sentiment of dishonor and discredit when he sees his Secretary of the Treasury in Wall street chaffering with the bankers, taking that from them as a favor which the people have commissioned the Government to do far hetter for itself; the more especially as in a great mational exigency the Secretary must get to the end of his bank line sooner or later, suffer a rebuff, and be thrown violently back to the use of the very sovereignty which he has so mabled.

In regard to the provision which the writer recommends, by which any holder of treasury notes may at any time convert them into Government bonds bearing interest, we would gay that this may at some future day be called but not until the currency shall be so abundant as to supply all the wants of trade and commerce. (1.) To the exclusion of all nierior currency; (2) until all the accumulated means of the people shall have been em ployed in the agricultural, manufacturing, to the fullest extent the industrial resources of the nation that can be employed profitably. nor (8) until the rate of interest in this coun-rope to three and four per cent. When that time shall come, and the holders of the Gov ernment currency, finding nothing else to invest in, shall begin to clamor for the Government to pay interest, and when the public lebt shall be securely put in the way of being $6 00 paid off, it will be time to consider the pro-3 56 priety of allowing some of it to be funded, as in England, in say three per cents.

The Secesh are now all for peace. As the Commonwealth remarks, they love the every Postoffice District in the State. Will our friends South, seek to share her destiny, but they are for peace. The South began this contest by various acts of war, seizing forts, vessels of war, and custom-houses, and even the troops sent to defend their own firesides from the savage. All this while the Government forore, didn't even offer to defend its own proptheir artillery upon Fort Sumpter, upon Maj. Anderson and his little band of heroes, under the old flag. The war was for months all on one side. Now we should like to learn why it is that these Secesh love peace so well, and at the same time feel such a fondness for the men who made the war, and who still insist on war. Let them go to their friends and talk peace. The Union men

But what does this cry for peace mean now? But what does this cry for peace mean now?

One party can make war—it takes two to make peace. If we withdraw the army of the United States will the South abandon her issue—a dissolution of the Union? Shall the Government give up Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, and Western Virginia? Shall it give up the dissolution of the Union? Shall the Governthis position.

The practical question of statesmanship before the country, then, is this: How can we divive the President and those in power from drive the President and those in power from their inious policy, and force him to call at an early day a session of the Congress elect, and thus prevent this dire result?

It is evident that mere resolutions and mortated these calamities on us and them. They spurmed our advice. They, at the same time, told their people that the war would not disturb their people that the war would not disturb the result. their people that the war would not disturb them; that it would be on the banks of the Potomac and Onio. Kentucky homes and firesides were to be desolated by war, whilst the sides were to be desolated by war, whilst the criminals who began it were to escape. They have tried to wage the war here. They have partially succeeded; but not at all to their satisfaction. They have destroyed our property and robbed our people. As our worst enemies they have sent their hostile bands into the State to plunder and murder in the president's pregramme, and to request their officers and men in the field to meet to gether and notify the President's pregramme, and to request their officers and men in the field to meet to gether and notify the President's pregramme, and to request their officers and men in the field to meet to gether and notify the President's pregramme, and to request their officers and men in the field to meet to gether and notify the President's partially succeeded; but not at all to their satisfaction. To the Editors of the Louisville Journ The masuscript which you will find herewith enclosed is a copy of a recent proclamation of our old friend Humphrey Marshall, and which proclamations are now secretly circulated in Eastern Kentucky, and, I suppose, in other parts of the State, for the purpose of stirring up sedition and revolution.

There is not much news from the mountains above. Many of the loyal men, despairing of aid, are removing their families from the mountains into the interior and into the free States. The outroops that or addition page 1. States. The outrages that are daily perpetrated upon our friends in the mountains are almost incredible. Many are in this county, exiles from home, without money. Many had exiles from home, without money. Many had their houses burned, their property stripped, even to the bedding and clothing for women and children. Yet, in the face of this, old Humphrey prates about some few retaliatory outrages committed by Union men! He has not one word to say about the twenty-six houses that were burned on the State road, from Owingsville to Grayson, Carter co., last fall by John Morgau's men; about the Wolf Home Guard. who have been lying for nearly Home Guard, who have been lying for nearly Home Guard, who have been lying for nearly a year in the lousy Libby Prison in Richmend and whom the Confederate Government refused to exchange. Every leading Union man caught in the mountains is either shot or carried off. On the contrary, we allow their friends to remain at home in the enjoyment of the same rights and privileges that a loyal riends to remain at home in the enjoyment of he same rights and privileges that a loyal an enjoys. And yet they abuse and threaten xtermination. But enough. Yours, respectfully.

A third expedition against Vicksburg now on its way, from which good news is daily expected. The forces which it comprises are withheld from the public. A Western paper, however, says that Gen. Grant will lead the land forces against the city. A letter from an officer in Gen. McClernand's army, dated Napoleon, Ark., Jan. 17, states that the croops had come down the Arkansas river in oats after the capture of Arkansas Post, and were going down the Mississippi, the destination being Vicksburg, which is again to be assailed, but with an army and other essentials sufficiently formidable to make the capture of that stronghold a certainty this time. Grant's and McClernand's armies and Porter's gunboat and mortar fleet are to move against the place together. The entire expedition has probably ere this gone forward from Memphis and Napoleon, and we may in a few days expect to hear the good news which the Government expec's.

If the canal shall prove a success, as the news of yesterday would indicate, and a cutoff, navigable for gunboats, shall be immedintely formed, so that they may get below, one great difficulty will be obviated and sucess rendered comparatively certain.

The coroner found the family in a shocking state of destitution. Letter from Thos. Turner, Esq., of Madison County, Ky.

Messrs. Editors: In these the dark hours of the Republic, when our liberties are assailed upon the one side by open rebellion, ambitions of independence, and on the other by fanatical abolition, which, in its anxiety to perpetuate its power and to destroy the ipstitution of slavery, is trampling under foot every principle of civil and political liberty, the

All agree that we should condemn by resolution the atrocities of the rebellion, and the usurpations of the President and Congress; but none have had the boldness to suggest the erty, until at last the insurgents poured out practical course by which we can drive the President and the party in power from their mad policy, which will inevitably result in division and ruin. comment. The letter from Mount Sterling to the Journal, accompanying the proclamation, which we give below, is of itself a sufficient commentary for the present:

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Jan. 29, 1863. tional guarantees. Our choice is between dis-union and the tender of such guarantees. Un-der which king will you fight, Benzonian?

The writer would suggest that the grantees to be so tendered should consist of the propositions known as the Crittenden Compromise, with this variation: that, instead of the line of 36 30 north, therein named, the compromise line should be made to run upon a parallel that would divide the territories between the two sections in proportion to the relative aggregate population of the free and slave States (it is supposed that that would give the line of (at a supposed that that would give the line of 38 north, which is the true line of slavery), and should embrace further amendments dedenying the power of the President to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, limiting the power of Congress to suspend it in time of rebellion or war to those districts of the country in which actual, avowed war and rebellion exists, and to the length of the time it as critical with the length of the time it so exists, and the further amendment that no future territory shall be acquired except with the consent of a majority of the members of Congress elected majority of the members of Congress elected from the free States, and also a majority of those elected from the slave States.

To these ends, the Legislatures now in session should address themselves to the work of getting up a national convention. The tender of such guarantees, if rejected by Jeff. Davis and his confederates, would build up a party in the South that would hurl him from power, just as the people of the North have hurled from power the fanatical Republicans. All these steps should be taken with care and prudence, and accompanied with earnest and honest expressions of devotion to the Union: dence, and accompanied with earnest and honest expressions of devotion to the Union; and in taking them we should guard them so and in taking them we should guard them so as not to give invitation and encouragement to disunionists, and not to throw our-selves in antagonism to the United States Government, but only to place us in antag-onism to the Administration and its policy. If these suggestions meet the approbation of the conservative friends of the Union, the writer will, at an early day, introduce into the Legislature of Kentucky resolutions embody ing the substance of them.

In ancient times it was the habit of Eastern despots to slay incontinently every bearer of dispatches. Some sad apprehension seems to possess the minds of those doubtful gentlemen who are constantly slipping across the Potomac at dead of night, and coming to Richmond for the patriotic purpose of espousing the Confederate cause, not by the vulgar method of joining the army, but by the far manlier plan of dodging into the office of the Quartermaster-General or Chief Commissary.

Knowing you to be sincerely desirous of a restoration of the old relations between the North and the South, of a restored Union and North and the South, of a restored Union and a reunited people, I write you to say that there is good prospect of such a consummation. The very air is murmuring peace. Leading Abolitionists, men of influence, character and standing, are at work to bring about a restoration on the old basis. They are willing to give up their Abolitionism forever, provided the Union—the old Union—can be restored. I speak what I know. It will be accomplished through the mediation of the French Emperor. This course is deemed necessary to satisfy the pride of the two sections. A mutual friend will bring them together, and his recommendation will be acquiesced in by both sides. This arrangement has been going on for some time, and the foremost men in it are, as I said before, leading Abolitionists, who are ready to give up their slavery agitation.

That the South expects and looks for this friendly adjustment, can be seen from the tone friendly adjustment, can be seen from the tone of the army correspondence of the Richmond Enquirer, which is Jeff Davis' organ. One of these, writing two or three days ago from the Rappahannock, says: "The pickets on either bank are so unwarlike, and yet so near to each other, that one cannot help feeling that this truce is but the precursor of that peace which will restore prosperity to both sections, whilst it gives security and honorable terms of adjustment to each. The ballothox and not the cert sections, whilst it gives security and honorable terms of adjustment to each. The ballot-box, and not the cartridge box, must and will be the arbiter of this strife, and my prediction is that the end is not afar." The drift of the whole letter—I have given but a single paragraph—goes to show his belief in a speedy restoration of the old relations under the old Union. Let us take renewed courage, and be ready to support the appears to have a horror of imparting to him anything that might in the least discompose his meditations.

War matters are quiet just now, and, I think, War matters are quiet just now, and, I think, are likely to remain so. The history of the late movement on the Rappahannock has not half been written, and cannot with safety be written now. It contains some very singular chapters. The army there is utterly demoralized, and will, I think, unless peace shall be made by April, be sent South and West, and its place supplied from the West. its place supplied from the West. TERRIFIC EXPLOSION IN NEWARE. - A frightboiler explosion took place on the 28th, about 11 o'clock, at the hatchet and edge ol manufactory of Mr. Charles A. DeHar No. 60 Adams street, Newark, New Jersey, The boiler was about 25 feet long, and the ex-plosion shot the main portion of it, with the force of a thunderbolt, through the end of the boiler room across a vacant lot adjoining, en-tirely through a building used as a soap manu-factory, through a stable on the same premises, and nearly across another vacant lot, in which it was finally deposited. The engineer, who was mamed Wilham B'ake, was sitting near the end of the boiler, and was carried with it through the wall of the engine room and into the soap manufactory on the next lot. He was terribly bruised and burnt, and cannot possibly survive. The boiler also struck, in its passage through the latter building, the proprietor, Mr. Miles Murphy, who happened to be the only person in the building. Mr. Murphy was dashed to fragments by the terrible lorce of the blow. The boiler carried the remains of Mr. Murphy before it through the stable, when it also killed a horse, and carried the body of the animal with it in its dreadful flight. ad nearly across another vacant lot, in which

A SUGGESTIVE RESOLUTION.—The following resolution was passed by a unanimous vote at a late Di mocratic meeting in Jefferson City. It is sufficiently suggestive of a course of action which, under the loose discipline of the army, has converted the military organization into a vast band of freebooters. It would appear from the following intelligence that our iron clad batteries are already ngaged in the Savannah river, and the next arrival from Port Royal will doubtless bring very interesting information. The letter is dated Jap. 26th:

The Montauk left Port Royal harbor early on Saturday last, in tow of the guaboat James Adger, bound for the Ogeeche river, a small stream emptying into Osabaw Sound, about stream emptying into Ossabaw Sound, about twenty miles south of Tybee island. Her object is to destroy or capture the rebel blockaderunning steamer Nashville, which has been waiting a chance to get to sea ever since last fall, with a cargo of cotton. As the Nashville is under the protection of a shore battery and of the ram Fingal, otherwise called the State of Georgia, there is likely to be some fighting, in which the Montank will have an excellent opportunity of testing the destructive capacity of her 15 and 11 inc. Daligren guns. Yesterday, one of the most opeque fegs hung over this entire region all day, and under its cover it is likely that the obstructions which have been put in the river were removed, and the torpedocs and other infernal contrivances rendered harmless.

This morning the sound of heavy guns was heard far away to the southward of Fort Pulaski, which Col. Barton, commanding the garrison, interprets as the action taking place.

ruinski, which Col. Barton, commanding the garrison, interprets as the action taking place. We expect the Montauk buck to-morrow, with the Nashville in tow, or the report of her destruction and that of the Fingal also, to prevent them falling into our hands, and her low iron floored decks covered with guns taken from the batteries on shore. Everybody is immoderately sanguine down here since the advent of irou-clads and the promise of active operations in the department. perations in the department

From the correspondent of the Baltimore American, dated Port Royal, 24th, we select the following:

The new Ironsides is being put in complete rim. Her topmasts and spars are being taken off, and she is assuming a most grim appear-

Another Monitor, the Passaic, arrived last Another Monitor, the Passaic, arrived last night, raising the number of iron clads now in port to three. The new Ironsides is pronounced by her commander a thorough sea going vessel. She encountered very rough weather, but behaved splendidly. Her speed, however, is not so great as expected, seven knots an hour being the highest attained. The Montauk as well as Passaic were subject to the test of rough sea and strong gales on the way here. The latter, especially, had to struggle with weather of unusual violence. Both tossed fearfully at sea, and their commanders express the conviction that, without the assistance of the towing steamers, they would have been unmanageable and hardly able to reach their destination.

would have been unmanageable and hardly able to reach their destination.

The Montauk and crew also suffered exceedingly from the heavy leakage of the upper portion of the craft. The Passaic proved less defective in this respect. Upon the whole, nautical men consider it as settled that the Monitors are unfit for independent navigation at sea. at sea.

Through a Blockade of Nine War Vessels, and off Tortugas Destroys a Boston Brig. The following particulars of the escape of the rebel steamer Oreto from Mobile, and her subsequent exploits, we learn from naval officers from Key West, who arrived here on the steamer Northern Light. The Oreto and covered by one of the blockading vessels of the squadron at Mobile Bay, endeavoring to pass out from that port early on the morning of the 13th. There were nine vessels of war stationed off the bar at the time—the Susquehanna, Kanawha, Oneida, Cuyler, Pembina, Kennebee, and three others. For several weeks past the Oreto was expected to make an attempt to run the blockade, and the Pembina was appointed to fire a signal gun to notify the fleet when she should make her appearance. The Pembina, however, on see notify the fleet when she should make her appearance. The Pembina however, on see notify the fleet when she should make her appearance.

appearance. The Pembina, however, on seeing the Oreto at the time above stated, instead of giving the signal, proceeded toward the other vessels to notify them verbally. It is supposed that the officers of the Pembina be-lieved that the vessel they saw was a decoy, and not the Oreto, as information had been received from rebel sources that a decoy-vessel would be sent out from Mobile to entice getting out to sea.

The Cuyler and Oneida, which are considered the fastest steamers in the equadron, chased her for many hours, but without success. The Cuyler lost sight of her shortly cess. The Cuyler lost sight of her shortly after her escape, though at one time she had come within a distance of four hundred yards of her. None of the other vessels joined in the chase. It is supposed that the Cuyler followed the Oreto to Havana, to which place it is thought she ran. The Cuyler had not returned, however. The statement that the Confederate steamer had sunk a Boston brighaden with sugar the day after her escape. aden with sugar, the day after her escape was obtained from vessels which arrived from Havana before the sailing of the Northern Light from New Orleans. It is feared that the Cuyler can not, alone, cope with the Oreto, and the hope is entertained that other war vessels had been sent to assist her. The Oreto was laden with seventeen hundred bales of cotton.

PEARL.-A Key West correspondent, under date of the 231, says:

Last evening the United States steamer Tiogs, commander Cleary, arrived from a cruse, bringing with her as a prize the Anglo-rebei steamer Pearl, which vessel she captured a few days ago on the Rahama Banks, when en route from Scotland to Nassau,

The Pearl was built upon the river Clyde for river navigation, and possesses extraordinary powers of speed. Her route on the river Clyde was forty-two miles, and she performed it near-ly always in two hours and twenty minutes, making four stops. Although a river steamer, she is to all appearance a sea going vessel. She is two hundred and twenty-five feet long, and is two hundred and twenty-five feet long, and only gitteen feet beam, and her tonnage, by English measurement, only one hundred and seventy five; has two diagonal engines of twenty-tight-inch cylinder and four feet stroke, is schooner-rigged, and has two lofty smoke-stacks, painted lead color; paddle-boxes large, and painted white; hull of iron, painted black.

It was not the speed of the Tioga that enabled her to effect her capture, but the great velocity of a shot from her hundred-pounder rifled gun.

This morning the United States steamer Sonoma arrived from a cruise. She reports that the prize steamer Virginia is on her way to this port and may arrive at any moment. She is the vessel before mentioned as having been captured by the Sonoma and Wachusett in Mexican ward and may be thick the second been captured by the Sonoma and Wachuse in Mexican waters, and which it was feare would prove a breach of neutrality laws. Su is not the case, however, the evidence again her being of the most positive and conclusive character. She is a very fine screw steamer, bark rigged, and similar in appearance to the Alabams. The Pearl would answer admirably for a dispatch boat for this station, and if condemned she would be taken for that purpose.

An imbecile administration has hampered and crippled them. Let the administration represent and act with the people, and the rebellion will soon be conquered.—[N. Y. Herald.

The rumor that General McClellan was on the express train from New York this morning filled the depot with such a crowd of citizens as is seldom seen. The convalescent soldiers from the hospitals had procured a drum and fife, and, with canes and crutches, infantry, artillery and zouaves, hobbled to the station to catch a glimpse of their favorite, "Little Mac." Never have we witnessed such enthusiasm, save on the visit of Andrew Jackson to this city in 1833. When the train came into the depot, cheers on cheers greeted its arrival, and the rush was almost suffocating. Like a modest man, he evidently preferred a quiet trip, but the muititude would not let him. Not DEAD .- The two men belonging to the On DEAD.—The two men belonging to the Chike the College of the offer with a lodge of the lodge o the affray with an Indian Menday in a coffee house on Green street, were still alive yesterday morning.

One of them, Dennis Shea, was shot in the right cheek, the ball louging under the ear. He is an orphan, and is well known in Lexington, Ky., where he enlisted in the service. He was connected in some way for the past two or three years with the Broadway Hotel, and is about 18 years of age.

The other is George Crutcher, whose head received four severe gashes, which bled profusely. They were both members of company C, and it is more than probable that they may recover from their fearful wounds. The Indian has not been captured. We did not learn his name.

The lower Mississippi, as we learn by a gentleman who arrived here this morning direct from Memphis, is rising very rapidly, and running over the banks in many places. The same gentleman informs us that he had information from Vicksburg up to Thursday morning last, at which time the water was fifteen feet deep in the "Butler Cut-Off," and that a channel was being rapidly cut out. It was confidently expected the guaboats could pass through it by Saturday last.

Mr. Gonsol attended in the office, Mr. Oglesby being indisposed. We have never seen so many persons visiting a new steamer at our wharf as walked about the Ruth yesterday and on Saturday. Everybody seemed to be pleased with her. The Ruth will ply between this port and Memphis, and will no doubt be in port on Friday next.

The Belle Memphis arrived last evening from Memphis, with a considerable cargo of grain, cotton, tobacco, &c. She will leave again on Tuesday evening. She reports the Perry at Columbus, taking on a regiment for the South, and passed the New Gaty at Sulphur Springs, with a steamboat hull in tow. We have from the Memphis Bulletin of the 29th the following in regard to the fire on a steamer at femphis: We had a narrow escape of a fearful catastrophe this morning. The large steamboat City of mem-phis, now lying at the foot of Washington street as a hospital beat, caught fire about 10 o'clock, owing to imprudence in heating too much the chimney of the store at the stern of the boat. The wood work between the hurricane deck and the ceiling was set on fire. A high wind was blowing on the river, the large stagment. ceiling was set on fire. A high wind was blowing up the river, the large steamer Thomas Clay alongside, the Dunieith, Progress, and other boars lay in an almost uninterrupted line to Wolf river, clear to the windward of the city of Memphis. The moment was an awful one! If the fire had spread one of the most awful catastrophes which ever visited this city would have been the consequence. By rapid, energetic, and well-directed efforts, the flames were subdued with very trifling damage. On the evening previous a similar occurrence was luminent from overheating the bake-house chimney on the larboard near the wheel-house.

About half of the fleet recently up White river is in need of repairs.

[Special Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette.] WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. After another day's protracted debate, the House this evening passed Thad. Stevens' negro regiment bill, by a vote of 83 to 55, Before its passage, Casey's amendment was adonted providing that the slaves of layard adopted, providing that the slaves of loyal masters in the States excepted by the Presidens's proclamation, should not be enlisted, and that no recruiring offices should be opened in such States except on procuring the con-sent of the Governors thereof. The bill itself sent of the Governors thereof. The bill itself gives permission to enlist any number of negroes not exceeding three hundred thousand, to be paid ten dollars a month with rations and equipments, to be officered by white men. On the passage of the bill, Blair and Segar, of Virginia, dodged; Thomas, of Massaohusetts, Kellog, of Illinols, Hamson, of Ohio, and Horton vated against it.

Mr. McDOUGAL moved to take up the resolution offered by him, relative to French operations in Mexico. He thought it was time this subject was brought to the attention of the country. He thought that France was already aiding war and rebellion by collusion with the Southern Confederacy, intending to seize on Texas and the more Southern States, and gain control of the Mississippi.

Mr. McDOUGALL addressed the Senate at length on the conduct of France with regard to Mexico. He contended that is was in violation of all international laws, and to the treaty and assurances made to this Government, and was calculated to overthrow the whole commercial system of this country. He whole commercial system of this country. He declared the ultimatum offered to Mexico by Fance a disgrace to any civilized nation, and said that if any government was unfriendly to us in this contest it was that of France. France needed a cotton corntry. She could flad it in Mexico. Lower California was not very loyal. Many disloyal men had gone to Souora. To-day very few arms, and little ammunition were left in California, and France might seize and hold that State at any time within thirty days. He thought the Government was bound to pay some attention to whole commercial system of this country. ernment was bound to pay some attention to this. There was no reason why we should be afraid of a conflict with Franc, or with Spain or England combined. The people of California were apprehensive of the designs of France, and he thought from the course and France, and he thought from the course and policy of France there was ground for apprehension. France would not withdraw her troops from Mexico. 100,000 troops sent from this country to aid the Mexicans, would drive the Freuch army into the sea. If necessary to go to war, this Government would do it in order to maintain a great fundamental doctrine and maintain our honor. If anything could now bind together this nation, it would be a just and holy war against a foreign foe. He believed the most of those now fighting against us would ion with us in a common cause

CAIRO, Jan. 31. The United States ram Horner arrived from the scene of operations near Vicksburg this morning, Capt G. J. White, of Chicago, com-manding. The Captain was bearer of dis-patches to Capt. Pennock and Gen. Curtis, at St. Louis.

From letters of your special correspondent with the fleet, and statements of other reliable persons, I extract the following late news from the land and river forces near Vicksburg: The steamer Sovereign, fitted up and used as a store boat, and part of the fleet, was rua into a store boat, and part of the fleet, was rua into a few days since, while lying at anchor at the mouth of White river, by the steamer Rocket, striking her amidship, shattering the stern of the Rocket and damaging badly the starboard wheel and guards of the Sovereign. The latter is left undergoing repairs, and the remainder of the fleet about the 20th inst. passed down the Mississippi.

Just after passing Napoleon, the Red Rover, a hospital steamer, was fied into by a gang of mounted guerrillas. No one was hurt. This was on the 21st inst. On the 22d the fleet moved on to Tibbett's plantation, five miles moved on to Tibbett's plantation, five miles above Lake Providence, Louisiana.

McClernand's force on the large fleet of transports came to a halt near the mouth of Yazoo river, on Friday, the 22d. During that day and the next the men engaged in lauding troops upon the peninsula through which a canal was cat last summer, and opposite Vicksburg. The transports filled up the levee space two miles above and below the mouth of the river. The Red Rover was moored in the river. A short distance up stream, in the Mississippi, opposite the shore, were the gunboat Tyler and two steam rams. Below were the Lexington and more rams. Transports were moved on to Tibbett's plantation, five miles

Lexington and more rams. Brow were the Lexington and more rams. Transports were above the Red river. In Yazoo river were the gunboats Benton, Chillicothe, Louisville, Pittsburg, Judge Torrence, and steamer Great Western—the latter an ammunition boat. Seven rebel transports are reported to have passed up the Yazoo, in the absence of our fleet, for supplies or men, and are now closely trapped there by this strong array of gunboats. Should they attempt to come out, they must taken.

The advance position of the gunboats and transports—those near the guaboats and transports—those near the guaboat Lexington—is about seven miles by water and about three by land from Vieksburg. When the troops are all landed on the pecinsult they will go up the river for thirty thousand more. The rumor that work hal again been commenced upon the canal through this neck of land is not corroborated by those just from Capt. White, was on picket duty, and passing the advance, was soon in plain view of the city, and could see steamers leaving and arriving, and people standing on the levee. In the arternoon the rebels opened with shell upon the ram and Federal scouts they saw opposite the city. No harm was done. They perhaps thought to drive our men from the peninsula, but did not succeed.

The effects of bad water in the Yazzo control and confinement to the transports.

try, and confidement to the transports, have made terrible havoc among our military men. Those on the gunboats stand it better. Yet The Restless brings passengers who were board the rebel steamer Hantress, baraed off the Generals in command will never give it up until a final effort has been made to open the river. Generals in command will never give it up until a final effort has been made to open the river. Let the people of the North and West see to it that a capable command r is placed at the head of afforts, and with the co-operation of Admiral Porter's fleet, things will be accomplished.

The rebels are hazarding everything to thwart our designs in this particular. The late rains have rendered the country almost im-passable, and some days must clapse before any tion, and is reported very weakly in hard money. At present she shares the wild and dangerous life of her husband on the Queen of I have to chronicle the death of Col. War-ren Stewart, Gen. McClernand's Chief of Cayalry, well known as a gallant and useful offi-cer. He went out on Friday, the 23.1 instant, to capture some rebel ferryboats running across soldiers from Louisiana to Vicksburg, below the peninsula. It was a dangerous undertaking, but one very necessary to be accomplished; and the fact that it was committed to Col. Stuart's hands is an indication of the estimation as a man and soldier in which he was held by his commanding officer. The job had not been completed when Col. Stuart's little force was attacked by the rebel outposts, and a desperate encounter ensued, during which Colonel Stewart was shot dead, and his men dispersed and sev-eral wounded. The body of the Colonel had been recovered when my informant left the fleet, but was found rifled by the chivalric enemy. To SUTLERS AND COUNTRY DEALERS.-I am

I here saw the bags, boxes and bales of Calisaya Bark, Wintergreen, and other material-and the original St. Croix Rum puncheons bearing the Customhouse brand. It seemed that medicine could here be turned out to supply a world of invalids-yet these gentlemen are unable to fill their orders for Plantation Bitters alone. I was shown many certificates of extraordinary cures effected by these Bitters. The statistics of the medicine business as presented to the last Congress in the report of Mr. D. S. Barnes, are enormous and startling, amounting to some six million dollars annually. The proprietors of these Bitters will pay Uncle Sam near fifty thousand dollars for stamps this year! With such individual resources, Government loans ought t stand at par, and Jefferson Davis might as well stand at par, and search pack up and start for Jerusalem. * * * * J. H. We are happy to reproduce the above letter and add that any ordinary case of Dyspepsla-Liver Complaint, Nervous Affection, Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Headache, Diarrhea, Siaking Weakness, Mental Despondency, &c., can be cured by the Plan tation Bittera. That all persons may judge of its efficacy we publish a list of some of the articles used in its preparation : CALISAYA BARK-Celebrated for over 200 years in the treatment of Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Weakness, &c. It was introduced into Europe by the Countess, wife of the Viceroy of Peru, in 1640, and was afterwards sold by the Jesuits for the enormous price of its own weight in silver, under the name of Jesuit's Powders, and finally made public by Louis XVI, King of France. Humboldt makes especial reference to its febrifage qualities during his South American travels. CASCARILLA BARK-For diarrhes, colle, and diseases of the stomach and bowels. DANDELION-For inflamation of the loins

and dropsical affections.

ANISE-An aromatic, carminative, creating flesh, muscle and milk; much used by mothers nursing. Also, clove buds, orange, carraway, corianshould be used. Another wonderful ingredient of Spanish origin, imparting beauty to the complexion and brilliancy to the mind, is yet unknown to the commerce of the world, and we withhold
